

CHRYSLER • AUSTIN
APPROVED LUBRICATION

Arditi Service Station
Rosh Pinah Rd. Cor. Rival St. Tel Aviv

WEDNESDAY,
July 5, 1950

THE JERUSALEM POST

PRICE: 20 PRUTA
VOL. XXVI No. 7288

Ladies' Summer Shoes
Wonderfully Comfortable

Lieber & Co.

Shoes for Women
New Russian Bldg., Jaffa Rd., Jerusalem
Use the morning hours for your shopping tour.

Column One
By David Courtney

North Koreans Capture Suwon

TOKYO, Tuesday. — A strong North Korean thrust today forced the evacuation of the important city of Suwon and its airfield by South Korean forces.

M. QUEUILLE, Radical Premier of France just about this time last year. His Government wobbled, then over the price of petrol but held out until the recess. The Parliamentary recess this time is only a week or two and M. Queuille might have been expected to have held out until then. His Government was more Right than Centre; and the Socialists, having swallowed so much, were unable yesterday, to swallow that much more.

THE Radicals will probably try to force through an electoral reform Bill. Before the war, the single-member system gave them more seats than they deserved, and they want more seats than they deserve again. Proportional representation is popular among most of the other Parties, including the Socialists, but as its abolition would almost certainly reduce the present Communist representation of 180 seats, even the Socialists may be willing to accept some new system.

THE M.R.P. at their Nantes Congress were against a return to the single-member system. But M. Bidault is apt at compromise and will be prepared to trade his electoral principles for an extension of State aid to Church schools. The Socialists and the Radicals, having outlived their anti-clericalism, seem ready enough to make the deal, and the Parties to the Right of M. Queuille will not object.

THE issues smack of make-believe. There is a war in Korea, and it will have its effects upon the French Socialists, of course. One quarter of the Party's subscribing members backed out during the past year. That was admitted at the Party's annual rally the other day. Korea is likely to send another quarter of the Party's membership packing. Until now, the Socialists have been able to serve as conscience for non-Communist sections of the population in the matter of Indo-China. But Indo-China, thanks to Mr. Truman would doubtless say, to the United Nations has, like Formosa, got itself mixed up with Korea. The Socialists, we may expect, will drop their criticism of the Bao Dai imposition and fall into line there—as they have fallen into line elsewhere.

THE Radicals and their allies of the Right are happy, even as Mr. Churchill, in Britain, is happy. Mr. Churchill said at a dinner the other day that although he was ready to support the Government on the Korea issue, to which he had recanted in the only way consistent with "honour," he did not forget that Communism is Socialist gone violent. A good many Socialists are beginning to agree with him; and in such a moment as this, it is rank bad form to be the kin, however pacific, of the outcast. The trouble is that it leaves practically nothing for the French Socialists to take with them to the country, in readiness for next year's general elections.

THE disappearance of the French Socialist Party as a force in European affairs was a post-war disaster. The British Socialists are likely to live longer. They have been able to keep the trade union membership at work and to keep it reasonably well fed and clothed. Their external policies, including Germany, Palestine, Malaya and the atom bomb, have therefore made very little impact. Their cold-shouldering of Continental socialism has done them no harm in Britain. But Churchill says that a general election is certain before the end of the year, and that when it comes, the Socialist experiment in Britain will end once and for all.

THE forces of the Right are gathering strength. The few still small voices raised in warning are getting bigger and smaller and are beginning to wonder if they can't better stop their marching and keep their heads. Perhaps they can do nothing, anyway. Clearly, most of the people who were once good French, or British, Socialists have begun to feel like that.

Tel Aviv, July 5.

India Reported Ready to Mediate

LONDON, Tuesday (AP). — Official sources disclosed today that India has told the Soviet Union and the U.S. that she is prepared to mediate in a bid to end the fighting. A promise of her offer is believed to be that the leading powers must agree to reunite North and South Korea into a single country. There was no immediate British comment.

The spokesman said that today's Northern effort was "real honest-to-God punch."

The Northern advance against Suwon held to the pattern they have followed in their drive southward. Tanks pushed forward driving the Southerners back. In past moves tanks have been followed closely by cavalry or infantry.

Infantry Follows

The spokesman could not say whether Northern infantry had entered Suwon, but it can be presumed that the North Koreans were tonight not far outside the city. The presence of Northern patrols five miles south of Suwon indicated that infantry had not been far behind the tanks and probably had passed them at Suwon. The Northern march into Suwon puts them well-south of the Southerners' Han River defence line which has been crumbling slowly for days.

General MacArthur's headquarters announced that 25 more Northern tanks had moved into the Korean fighting zone as the Northern columns pushed a wide flanking movement southeast of Suwon.

The spokesman said evidence seemed to show that North Korean planes and not Australian Mustangs attacked American advanced positions yesterday in the American troops baptism of fire in Korea. He said that one Northern type plane resembles the Mustang and the Northern insignia might have been mistakenly identified as Australian.

U.S. Britain Attack Soviet Statement

LONDON, Tuesday (Reuters). — A British Foreign Office spokesman today strongly criticized what he called Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko's attempt to represent application of military sanctions against North Korea as a wholly American venture.

He pointed out that many other countries including Britain had now volunteered to give forces to support the Security Council resolution permitting sanctions.

In Washington, diplomats shrugged off Russia's charge of U.S. "aggression" as a Soviet bid to revive its battered divide-and-conquer doctrine.

These quarters believed that the statement was intended to pump new life into Soviet "peace" offers, pulling the West into false hopes of security, and to reassure the Russian people that their government is not actually aggressive but working only for peace.

Nahas Pasha Asks Early U.K. Talks

CAIRO, Tuesday (Reuters). — Egyptian Premier Nahas Pasha said yesterday he had told British Ambassador Sir Ralph Stevenson that it was essential that Britain and Egypt settle their outstanding differences as soon as possible.

He added that he had reiterated Egypt's demands for the immediate evacuation of British troops from Egypt and unity of the Nile Valley under the Egyptian crown.

The Premier was addressing a press conference to "clarify the situation" resulting from newspaper reports of impending negotiations for a revision of the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian treaty.

Cairo Statement Surprises Britain

LONDON, Tuesday (Reuters). — Reports from Cairo that negotiations between Britain and Egypt for the revision of the Anglo-Egyptian treaty are about to open there were received with surprise in London today.

While Britain's wish to achieve a settlement of outstanding problems with Egypt as soon as possible is well known, a Foreign Office spokesman today stated that no instructions had gone to Sir Ralph Stevenson, British Ambassador in Cairo, to embark on treaty revision negotiations at this stage.

After Midnight

A man was shot dead in a basement yesterday when the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants were about to start a baseball game.

'U.S. Is Moving Towards Open War' - Gromyko

LONDON, Tuesday (AP). — Russia today accused the U.S. of "moving step by step towards open war." M. Andrei Gromyko, U.S.S.R. Senior Deputy Foreign Minister, made the charge in Russia's first top-level comment on the Korean fighting.

"America has committed a hostile act against the peace and bears the responsibility for the consequences," said the statement as distributed in London by Tass, the Soviet News Agency. M. Gromyko said the U.S. wants to seize all Korea and use it as a "military and strategic springboard in the Far East."

He described as "illegal" the Security Council's decision authorizing intervention in Korea.

The United Nations organization will achieve its obligations concerning the maintenance of peace only if the Security Council demands the absolute cessation of American military intervention and the immediate evacuation of the American armed forces from Korea," he stated.

Tracing the gradual reinforcement of American forces in Korea, M. Gromyko declared: "All this goes to show that the U.S. Government—compelled to reckon with the unwillingness of the American people to be involved in a new military venture—is gradually drawing the country step by step into open war."

America's intervention, he charged, was a gross violation of the Big Four's Cairo and Potsdam agreements which recognized Formosa as part of China.

(AP, Reuters)

Diplomats Consider S. Korean Plan To Future Dangers Seize North Alleged

WASHINGTON, Tuesday (UPI). — Diplomatic quarters here and in London today warned that the real danger of a world conflict may come when—and if—General MacArthur's forces drive the North Koreans back to the 38th parallel.

That is regarded as the fatal hour because the U.S. and other nations committed to aiding South Korea, will then face the choice of halting at the line and appealing to the North Koreans, through the U.N., to cease fighting or pushing beyond the line to the Manchurian border.

Informed observers, who have considered the latter possibility, believe that such action, which would involve conquering all of North Korea, would be impossible under the U.N. resolution of June 27. It is more likely that MacArthur would then seek U.N. sanction to push beyond the 38th parallel if the U.S. Government, on its advice, should decide that this should be done.

One of the arguments suggested in favour of not stopping short of the Manchurian border is that, if U.N. forces halted at the 38th parallel, American and other troops would have to be stationed along that border indefinitely. On the other hand, the danger of attack from Chinese communists in Manchuria would also exist, but is not regarded as likely a possibility as an attack from North Korea if the 38th parallel remained the dividing line.

He was quoted to the effect that it had been preparing to attack for more than a year and that the usual half yearly changeover in border garrisons was omitted in April.

He added that he had reiterated Egypt's demands for the immediate evacuation of British troops from Egypt and unity of the Nile Valley under the Egyptian crown.

The Premier was addressing a press conference to "clarify the situation" resulting from newspaper reports of impending negotiations for a revision of the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian treaty.

CAIRO, Tuesday (Reuters). — Egyptian Premier Nahas Pasha said yesterday he had told British Ambassador Sir Ralph Stevenson that it was essential that Britain and Egypt settle their outstanding differences as soon as possible.

He added that he had reiterated Egypt's demands for the immediate evacuation of British troops from Egypt and unity of the Nile Valley under the Egyptian crown.

The Premier was addressing a press conference to "clarify the situation" resulting from newspaper reports of impending negotiations for a revision of the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian treaty.

While Britain's wish to achieve a settlement of outstanding problems with Egypt as soon as possible is well known, a Foreign Office spokesman today stated that no instructions had gone to Sir Ralph Stevenson, British Ambassador in Cairo, to embark on treaty revision negotiations at this stage.

A man was shot dead in a basement yesterday when the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants were about to start a baseball game.

Knesset Votes Confidence in Gov't on Korea Resolution

Neutrality Must Not Be Used Against Peace, Sharett Says

The Foreign Minister, Mr. Moshe Sharett, reaffirming the Government's adherence to the principle of "non-identification with either of the contending blocs that have been formed in the world," declared in the Knesset yesterday that this principle "cannot be perverted into repudiation of world peace." In supporting the Security Council's efforts to restore peace in Korea, he added, Israel was true to its course based on "preservation of the authority of the U.N. for the sake of peace." He also appealed "to all in whose power it is today, to sheath the sword in the Far East."

His statement follows:

"The world, hovering between a shattered peace and threat of war, trapped between hope and despair, was horrified and shaken by the first reports of the outbreak of fighting in Korea. Whoever opened the hostilities was, in the eyes of the world, the one who threw a burning match into an explosive store. His is the responsibility for the conflict in embryo, which from small beginnings is liable to engulf the entire globe in blood and fire, and bring upon mankind a disaster from which it may not recover."

The Government was well aware of the fact that the meeting of the Security Council had been held in the absence of one of its permanent members. The withdrawal of the Soviet Union from the meetings of the Security Council, just as the absence of USSR and a number of states allied to it, from other U.N. bodies, was at the time a matter of profound regret to the Government of Israel and had given rise to grave concern for the future.

Iraq's representative wholeheartedly upheld the efforts of the Secretary General to close the breach and to restore to the United Nations its integrity and full functioning capacity. These views were expressed in numerous conversations with the Secretariat and others. At the same time the Israel delegation to the U.N. did all it could to preserve and strengthen the relations of friendship and mutual understanding with the Soviet delegation; our delegation is under instructions to persevere in these efforts in the future.

Throughout the world, masses of people today fix their eyes upon the United Nations, and ask whether it will find the fortitude, the ability and the strength to carry forward its exalted mission and erect a barrier against the catastrophe. Will it succeed in nipping the evil of war in the bud? Will it prove able not only to repel the danger but also to fortify and to consolidate the peace of the world and remove the threat of war from its horizon?

The Security Council is the organ of the United Nations charged to watch over international security. At three successive sessions, on June 25, 27 and 29, the Council considered the Korean issue. The decisions of the two first sittings were transmitted, on their respective dates, in a special circular telegram from the General Secretary of the United Nations for the information of all member governments of the United Nations, Israel included.

He pointed out that many other countries including Britain had now volunteered to give forces to support the Security Council resolution permitting sanctions.

In Washington, diplomats shrugged off Russia's charge of U.S. "aggression" as a Soviet bid to revive its battered divide-and-conquer doctrine.

These quarters believed that the statement was intended to pump new life into Soviet "peace" offers, pulling the West into false hopes of security, and to reassure the Russian people that their government is not actually aggressive but working only for peace.

In its second resolution, on June 27th, the Council reported that the North Korean authorities had not ceased hostilities or withdrawn their troops to the 38th parallel; that urgent military action was needed to restore peace and international security; that the Korean Republic had appealed to the U.N. for urgent and effective measures to assure peace and security.

On the basis of all this, the Council recommended to all members of the U.N. to extend assistance to the Korean Republic, ordered the immediate cessation of hostilities and called upon the North Korean authorities to withdraw their forces to the 38th parallel, and invited member States of the United Nations to extend assistance to the U.N. in the execution of this resolution, while withholding help from North Korea.

In its third resolution, on June 29th, in which he informed each government that in the event of it being in a position to extend aid to South Korea, it would facilitate the carrying out of the resolution if it were to inform the Secretariat of the nature of such proposed aid.

The government of Premier Henri Queuille was defeated on its first appearance in the Assembly this afternoon following a Socialist revolt against the inclusion of certain conservative ministers in the government, especially M. Paul Reynaud who is regarded by the Socialists as the mouthpiece of big business.

Radical-Socialist Queuille was defeated on June 29th, in which he informed each government that in the event of it being in a position to extend aid to South Korea, it would facilitate the carrying out of the resolution if it were to inform the Secretariat of the nature of such proposed aid.

The Government had now have to start looking for a new premier-designate for the second time within less than a fortnight. Meanwhile, the Queuille cabinet will conduct current government business, with M. Robert Schuman as the Foreign Office.

It was believed that the new crisis would be very difficult to resolve. There was fresh talk in the lobbies of dissolving Parliament and holding new elections soon.

Right-Wing Opposition Votes with Coalition

A leftist opposition attempt to unseat the Ben Gurion

Government for supporting the Security Council's action in the Korean affair failed in the Knesset in the small hours of this morning, when a Mapai-Communist motion of non-confidence was defeated 79-19. Later, a resolution by Mr. Pinhas Lubianiker (Mapai) expressing approval of the Government's reply to the United Nations was passed 68 to 20, with eight abstentions.

The Prime Minister, Mr. David Ben Gurion, who took part in the closing stages of the debate said that Israel would not send legions to Korea, because the State was itself threatened with invasion. But he felt that the Security Council's action in Korea would put off the threat of a third world war for years. For Israel, that was the only criterion. Whether the Government of South Korea was good or bad was a lesser consideration, he said.

He further declared that had Great Britain and France shown the same firmness in 1936 when Hitler invaded the Rhineland, the second world war might have been avoided. The Herut and the General Zionist opposition factions joined the coalition in voting against the Mapai motion. Herut actually approved the Government's position on the Korean incident, but opposed the clauses in the Israel statement pledging adherence to United Nations decisions.

The main issue in the debate was whether the Government's statement implied a departure from the policy of "non-identification" with either bloc in the cold war. The Foreign Minister, Mr. Sharett, and all the coalition supporters, as well as Mr. Joseph Scheuer (General Zionists) maintained that this was consistent with the policy laid down in the Government's Ten-Point Program.

Another issue widely discussed was whether Israel was morally and legally bound to take action. Mr. Itzhak Ben Aharon and Mr. Yakov Rishon (Mapai), Mr. Meir Wilner (Communists) and Mr. Yael-Mor (Fighters) all felt that there were also legal grounds to dispute the validity of the Security Council's decision. They regarded the Korean affair as a civil war and labelled American intervention as "aggression."

Mr. Pinhas Lubianiker (Mapai) said that the policy of "non-identification" never meant that Israel should take no position on controversial issues. All it meant was there should be no "total identification with either bloc in the cold war."

Mr. Zalman Aronowitz, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, also said that the Justice and Injustice of the North Korean aggression was of secondary importance. What was important was that whatever set a detonator to a powder keg might cause a third world war.

Listing the Middle East amongst explosive areas, Mr. Aronowitz said that all boundaries in "powder keg" areas should be frozen.

Heated Exchanges

The debate was restrained until the Prime Minister in the closing stages ripped into his forthright manner. He said his pathos over the "murder of workers" had surprisingly left him cold, and he felt this was due to the fact that the Hashomer Hatzair faction of Mapai had declined to mobilize to fight Hitler until after the Nazis invaded Russia. Mapai members rose from their seats almost to a man and said this was untrue.

The Prime Minister regards the United Nations first and last, as a union of nations mutually guaranteeing the preservation of peace. This bond of mutual guarantee confers rights and imposes duties. Just as Israel will not waive its rights or claim vis-a-vis the international organization, so she cannot escape its obligations towards it. Its force of both the claims and the responsibilities must endure as long as the organization itself lasts.

The Government of Israel has given root and careful consideration to the political implications of the choice with which it had been confronted by the force of events over which it has no control. From the inception of the State, the Government has maintained, as a vital element of its foreign policy, the principle of "non-identification" with either of the contending blocs that have been formed in the world. This principle has given root and careful consideration to the political implications of the choice with which it had been confronted by the force of events over which it has no control. From the inception of the State, the Government has maintained, as a vital

15 Princess Mary Avenue
Tel Aviv 2190 JerusalemSocial & Personal

Mr. Berti Locker, Chairman of the Jewish Agency Executive, yesterday sent a cable of congratulations to Mr. Benjamin Browdy, on the occasion of his election as President of the Zionist Organization of America.

Mrs. M. Sharet, wife of the Foreign Minister, will be the speaker at a reception arranged by the WIZO Tourist Department at 4:30 p.m. on Friday afternoon, at the WIZO Club, 91 Rehov Hayarkon, Tel Aviv. Mrs. Sharet will recount her impressions of her recent trip to South Africa. Kabbalat Shabbat and songs will follow. All friends and tourists are cordially invited.

Dr. M. Stein, Asst. Professor of Psychology and Director of the Psychology Laboratory Clinic in Chicago University, will deliver the fifth of a series of six guest-lectures (in Hebrew) under the auspices of the Hebrew University on "Clinical Psychology" at eight o'clock this evening at Terra Sancta, Room 29a, 4th floor. The public is invited.

Mr. Max Spilkin, Managing Director of Cape Produce Co. (Pty.) Ltd., Port Elizabeth, South Africa, has arrived in Israel on a short business visit. (Phone 4954 Tel Aviv).

BIRTH

HEILIGER — To Gerda (nee Wolff), wife of Mr. H. Heiliger, on July 3, 1950, at the Bikur Holim Hospital, Jerusalem, — a son.

Kesher Taxis take you from summer heat direct to Dolphin House, Shavel Zion-on-sea, for the best food, finest service and total relaxation. Phone: Tel Aviv 2025 or Nahariya 85. (Adet.)

Sharett to Speak
At Centre Assembly

TEL AVIV, Tuesday — The Foreign Minister and other dignitaries are scheduled to speak on Thursday night at the Habimah Theatre at one of two meetings to be held on behalf of the Jerusalem Convention Centre Association. The other scheduled speakers are Chief Rabbi I. H. Herzog, Mayor L. Rokach, Mr. Berti Locker, Chairman of the Jewish Agency Executive; and Mr. A. Ezer, Managing Director of the Centre.

The second meeting will be held at the Orion Cinema in Jerusalem on Friday night, and will take the form of a "Vocal Newspaper." The speakers will be Prof. Shmuel Sambursky, Chairman of the Scientific Research Council, Mayanot, Daniel Auster, and Mr. Ezer. The editor will be Gershon Agnon, head of the Government Information Services.

Mr. Shimon Finkel, of Habimah Theatre, will appear on both programmes.

WORKSHOP STUDENTS
LYTDA AIRPORT, Tuesday. — Seventy American students and four professors were expected here tonight in two El Al planes. They are to take part in the "workshop" of New York University, a seven-week course arranged for them at Bari Katsnelson Institute near Kfar Saba. A similar course was given last year.

"PALASTIN" FOUNDER DEAD

The death took place in Beirut last week of Issa Bey el Issa, pioneer of Arab journalism in Palestine. In 1911, he founded "Palastin," the Christian-Arab daily. After the fall of Jaffa, "Palastin" moved to Amman (the Issa family were always supporters of the Hashemite dynasty) and later to the Old City where it is now being published.

JERUSALEM CINEMAS

At 8:30, 7 and 9 p.m.
EDITION: Monsieur Verlaine — 8:30,
7, 9:15 p.m.
ORION: House of Strangers.
SYNTHESIS: Les Millions de Po.
Luchino Visconti.
STUDIO: Day of Wrath (8, 7 and 9 p.m.).
ZION: Never Say Die (8:30 &
7 p.m.).

The Hebrew National OPERA
TEL AVIV: Habimah
Tuesday, July 11, 8:30 p.m.
CARMEN
with Edis de Philippe
(Carmen).
I. Kochenoff, L. Horowitz,
Hanna Zamar and others.
Tickets: Ballina, 61 Allenby Rd.,
Tel Aviv, Tel. 5012.

New Summer ModelsSabbatical Leave For Teachers Urged

The introduction of a sabbatical leave year for elementary school teachers was advocated by the Minister of Education, Mr. Z. Shazar, in Jerusalem last night. Speaking at the opening of the Hebrew University extension course for school teachers he also stressed the need for teachers constantly to renew their knowledge.

The participants in the course which has been organized jointly by the Chairs of Adult Education and the Hebrew University, the Education Department of the Ministry of Education, and the Hebrew Teachers' Organization, were welcomed by Prof. A. H. Frankel, Head of the Hebrew Centre for Adult Education, Professor S. Assaf for the Hebrew University, and Mr. Shalom Levin, for the Teachers' Organization.

The course, started in 1948, was interrupted owing to the War of Liberation.

For two months during the summer vacation, and a fortnight in the winter holidays, the pupils will study Jewish subjects and Humanities, Natural Sciences, Education and Psychology. The course last two to six hours each day. At the end of the year the course the pupils will receive a diploma.

88 cases of contraventions against agricultural laws have been brought before the courts during recent months.

The authorities are aware of this state of affairs, which threatens to reduce productivity. But passing a law does not help, as shown by the experience gained during last year's "Keep Quiet" campaign.

What is required, according to Mr. Halperin, Chief Municipal

TEL AVIV. — The fierce heat of the summer, which drives peoples on to their balconies and into the street, has made this city noisy day and night. Sporadic posters, asking for "Quiet Please," still adorn many walls but they are now considered part of the town's equipment and ignored completely.

Until far into the night, Inspector, is a well-planned campaign to educate the public to educate the children, youth organizations, mothers, drivers, and all the other noisy citizens.

Last winter, Mr. Halperin worked out a plan to combat noise and foster courtesy, accuracy and punctuality. Their absence, he maintains, impresses visitors from abroad pleasantly, and tends to reduce efficiency at work.

Mr. Halperin suggests that a committee of local and Government officials, including the police services, the press, youth organizations and teachers unions be set up to conduct an organized campaign, the expenses to be paid by the public funds. The campaign should include newspaper and radio publicity, lectures, cinema slides, a weekly lesson in school. These clearly defined objectives, he says, can drive noise hooters off the road of night for no apparent reason, should be punished, and other noise makers be put to bed.

"Trials and fines alone will do no good," Mr. Halperin thinks, "because the tendency for quiet must become second nature with the population, and this cannot be achieved by punishment."

The authorities are aware of this state of affairs, which threatens to reduce productivity. But passing a law does not help, as shown by the experience gained during last year's "Keep Quiet" campaign.

What is required, according to Mr. Halperin, Chief Municipal

TEL AVIV. — The fierce heat of the summer, which drives peoples on to their balconies and into the street, has made this city noisy day and night. Sporadic posters, asking for "Quiet Please," still adorn many walls but they are now considered part of the town's equipment and ignored completely.

Until far into the night, Inspector, is a well-planned campaign to educate the public to educate the children, youth organizations, mothers, drivers, and all the other noisy citizens.

Last winter, Mr. Halperin worked out a plan to combat noise and foster courtesy, accuracy and punctuality. Their absence, he maintains, impresses visitors from abroad pleasantly, and tends to reduce efficiency at work.

Mr. Halperin suggests that a committee of local and Government officials, including the police services, the press, youth organizations and teachers unions be set up to conduct an organized campaign, the expenses to be paid by the public funds. The campaign should include newspaper and radio publicity, lectures, cinema slides, a weekly lesson in school. These clearly defined objectives, he says, can drive noise hooters off the road of night for no apparent reason, should be punished, and other noise makers be put to bed.

"Trials and fines alone will do no good," Mr. Halperin thinks, "because the tendency for quiet must become second nature with the population, and this cannot be achieved by punishment."

The authorities are aware of this state of affairs, which threatens to reduce productivity. But passing a law does not help, as shown by the experience gained during last year's "Keep Quiet" campaign.

What is required, according to Mr. Halperin, Chief Municipal

TEL AVIV. — The fierce heat of the summer, which drives peoples on to their balconies and into the street, has made this city noisy day and night. Sporadic posters, asking for "Quiet Please," still adorn many walls but they are now considered part of the town's equipment and ignored completely.

Until far into the night, Inspector, is a well-planned campaign to educate the public to educate the children, youth organizations, mothers, drivers, and all the other noisy citizens.

Last winter, Mr. Halperin worked out a plan to combat noise and foster courtesy, accuracy and punctuality. Their absence, he maintains, impresses visitors from abroad pleasantly, and tends to reduce efficiency at work.

Mr. Halperin suggests that a committee of local and Government officials, including the police services, the press, youth organizations and teachers unions be set up to conduct an organized campaign, the expenses to be paid by the public funds. The campaign should include newspaper and radio publicity, lectures, cinema slides, a weekly lesson in school. These clearly defined objectives, he says, can drive noise hooters off the road of night for no apparent reason, should be punished, and other noise makers be put to bed.

"Trials and fines alone will do no good," Mr. Halperin thinks, "because the tendency for quiet must become second nature with the population, and this cannot be achieved by punishment."

The authorities are aware of this state of affairs, which threatens to reduce productivity. But passing a law does not help, as shown by the experience gained during last year's "Keep Quiet" campaign.

What is required, according to Mr. Halperin, Chief Municipal

TEL AVIV. — The fierce heat of the summer, which drives peoples on to their balconies and into the street, has made this city noisy day and night. Sporadic posters, asking for "Quiet Please," still adorn many walls but they are now considered part of the town's equipment and ignored completely.

Until far into the night, Inspector, is a well-planned campaign to educate the public to educate the children, youth organizations, mothers, drivers, and all the other noisy citizens.

Last winter, Mr. Halperin worked out a plan to combat noise and foster courtesy, accuracy and punctuality. Their absence, he maintains, impresses visitors from abroad pleasantly, and tends to reduce efficiency at work.

Mr. Halperin suggests that a committee of local and Government officials, including the police services, the press, youth organizations and teachers unions be set up to conduct an organized campaign, the expenses to be paid by the public funds. The campaign should include newspaper and radio publicity, lectures, cinema slides, a weekly lesson in school. These clearly defined objectives, he says, can drive noise hooters off the road of night for no apparent reason, should be punished, and other noise makers be put to bed.

"Trials and fines alone will do no good," Mr. Halperin thinks, "because the tendency for quiet must become second nature with the population, and this cannot be achieved by punishment."

The authorities are aware of this state of affairs, which threatens to reduce productivity. But passing a law does not help, as shown by the experience gained during last year's "Keep Quiet" campaign.

What is required, according to Mr. Halperin, Chief Municipal

TEL AVIV. — The fierce heat of the summer, which drives peoples on to their balconies and into the street, has made this city noisy day and night. Sporadic posters, asking for "Quiet Please," still adorn many walls but they are now considered part of the town's equipment and ignored completely.

Until far into the night, Inspector, is a well-planned campaign to educate the public to educate the children, youth organizations, mothers, drivers, and all the other noisy citizens.

Last winter, Mr. Halperin worked out a plan to combat noise and foster courtesy, accuracy and punctuality. Their absence, he maintains, impresses visitors from abroad pleasantly, and tends to reduce efficiency at work.

Mr. Halperin suggests that a committee of local and Government officials, including the police services, the press, youth organizations and teachers unions be set up to conduct an organized campaign, the expenses to be paid by the public funds. The campaign should include newspaper and radio publicity, lectures, cinema slides, a weekly lesson in school. These clearly defined objectives, he says, can drive noise hooters off the road of night for no apparent reason, should be punished, and other noise makers be put to bed.

"Trials and fines alone will do no good," Mr. Halperin thinks, "because the tendency for quiet must become second nature with the population, and this cannot be achieved by punishment."

The authorities are aware of this state of affairs, which threatens to reduce productivity. But passing a law does not help, as shown by the experience gained during last year's "Keep Quiet" campaign.

What is required, according to Mr. Halperin, Chief Municipal

TEL AVIV. — The fierce heat of the summer, which drives peoples on to their balconies and into the street, has made this city noisy day and night. Sporadic posters, asking for "Quiet Please," still adorn many walls but they are now considered part of the town's equipment and ignored completely.

Until far into the night, Inspector, is a well-planned campaign to educate the public to educate the children, youth organizations, mothers, drivers, and all the other noisy citizens.

Last winter, Mr. Halperin worked out a plan to combat noise and foster courtesy, accuracy and punctuality. Their absence, he maintains, impresses visitors from abroad pleasantly, and tends to reduce efficiency at work.

Mr. Halperin suggests that a committee of local and Government officials, including the police services, the press, youth organizations and teachers unions be set up to conduct an organized campaign, the expenses to be paid by the public funds. The campaign should include newspaper and radio publicity, lectures, cinema slides, a weekly lesson in school. These clearly defined objectives, he says, can drive noise hooters off the road of night for no apparent reason, should be punished, and other noise makers be put to bed.

"Trials and fines alone will do no good," Mr. Halperin thinks, "because the tendency for quiet must become second nature with the population, and this cannot be achieved by punishment."

The authorities are aware of this state of affairs, which threatens to reduce productivity. But passing a law does not help, as shown by the experience gained during last year's "Keep Quiet" campaign.

What is required, according to Mr. Halperin, Chief Municipal

TEL AVIV. — The fierce heat of the summer, which drives peoples on to their balconies and into the street, has made this city noisy day and night. Sporadic posters, asking for "Quiet Please," still adorn many walls but they are now considered part of the town's equipment and ignored completely.

Until far into the night, Inspector, is a well-planned campaign to educate the public to educate the children, youth organizations, mothers, drivers, and all the other noisy citizens.

Last winter, Mr. Halperin worked out a plan to combat noise and foster courtesy, accuracy and punctuality. Their absence, he maintains, impresses visitors from abroad pleasantly, and tends to reduce efficiency at work.

Mr. Halperin suggests that a committee of local and Government officials, including the police services, the press, youth organizations and teachers unions be set up to conduct an organized campaign, the expenses to be paid by the public funds. The campaign should include newspaper and radio publicity, lectures, cinema slides, a weekly lesson in school. These clearly defined objectives, he says, can drive noise hooters off the road of night for no apparent reason, should be punished, and other noise makers be put to bed.

"Trials and fines alone will do no good," Mr. Halperin thinks, "because the tendency for quiet must become second nature with the population, and this cannot be achieved by punishment."

The authorities are aware of this state of affairs, which threatens to reduce productivity. But passing a law does not help, as shown by the experience gained during last year's "Keep Quiet" campaign.

What is required, according to Mr. Halperin, Chief Municipal

TEL AVIV. — The fierce heat of the summer, which drives peoples on to their balconies and into the street, has made this city noisy day and night. Sporadic posters, asking for "Quiet Please," still adorn many walls but they are now considered part of the town's equipment and ignored completely.

Until far into the night, Inspector, is a well-planned campaign to educate the public to educate the children, youth organizations, mothers, drivers, and all the other noisy citizens.

Last winter, Mr. Halperin worked out a plan to combat noise and foster courtesy, accuracy and punctuality. Their absence, he maintains, impresses visitors from abroad pleasantly, and tends to reduce efficiency at work.

Mr. Halperin suggests that a committee of local and Government officials, including the police services, the press, youth organizations and teachers unions be set up to conduct an organized campaign, the expenses to be paid by the public funds. The campaign should include newspaper and radio publicity, lectures, cinema slides, a weekly lesson in school. These clearly defined objectives, he says, can drive noise hooters off the road of night for no apparent reason, should be punished, and other noise makers be put to bed.

"Trials and fines alone will do no good," Mr. Halperin thinks, "because the tendency for quiet must become second nature with the population, and this cannot be achieved by punishment."

The authorities are aware of this state of affairs, which threatens to reduce productivity. But passing a law does not help, as shown by the experience gained during last year's "Keep Quiet" campaign.

What is required, according to Mr. Halperin, Chief Municipal

TEL AVIV. — The fierce heat of the summer, which drives peoples on to their balconies and into the street, has made this city noisy day and night. Sporadic posters, asking for "Quiet Please," still adorn many walls but they are now considered part of the town's equipment and ignored completely.

Until far into the night, Inspector, is a well-planned campaign to educate the public to educate the children, youth organizations, mothers, drivers, and all the other noisy citizens.

Last winter, Mr. Halperin worked out a plan to combat noise and foster courtesy, accuracy and punctuality. Their absence, he maintains, impresses visitors from abroad pleasantly, and tends to reduce efficiency at work.

Mr. Halperin suggests that a committee of local and Government officials, including the police services, the press, youth organizations and teachers unions be set up to conduct an organized campaign, the expenses to be paid by the public funds. The campaign should include newspaper and radio publicity, lectures, cinema slides, a weekly lesson in school. These clearly defined objectives, he says, can drive noise hooters off the road of night for no apparent reason, should be punished, and other noise makers be put to bed.

"Trials and fines alone will do no good," Mr. Halperin thinks, "because the tendency for quiet must become second nature with the population, and this cannot be achieved by punishment."

The authorities are aware of this state of affairs, which threatens to reduce productivity. But passing a law does not help, as shown by the experience gained during last year's "Keep Quiet" campaign.

What is required, according to Mr. Halperin, Chief Municipal

TEL AVIV. — The fierce heat of the summer, which drives peoples on to their balconies and into the street, has made this city noisy day and night. Sporadic posters, asking for "Quiet Please," still adorn many walls but they are now considered part of the town's equipment and ignored completely.

Until far into the night, Inspector, is a well-planned campaign to educate the public to educate the children, youth organizations, mothers, drivers, and all the other noisy citizens.

Last winter, Mr. Halperin worked out a plan to combat noise and foster courtesy, accuracy and punctuality. Their absence, he maintains, impresses visitors from abroad pleasantly, and tends to reduce efficiency at work.</p

from DAN to BEERSHEBA
TODAY'S POST RAG

THE WEATHER

	A	B	C	D
M. Giza'an	37	18	29	30
Hadera Airport	37	20	30	30
Hakirya	37	20	30	30
Lydda Airport	42	20	32	32
Jerusalem	36	19	28	30
Beersheba	19	-	-	-

* Humidity at 8 p.m. yesterday.
 Max. temp. yesterday.
C Max. temp. yesterday.
D Max. temp. expected today.

Loans to the value of IL 100,000 will be issued shortly by the Government to Arab farmers.

The Music Division of the Ministry of Education has awarded 11 music scholarships. One of the scholarships is for study abroad.

Haifa Port delayed 97,734 tons of goods last month, of which 450 tons were exports. In June 1949, the corresponding figures were 57,697 and 85 tons respectively.

The Ministry of Agriculture is conducting a campaign against wasps which are attacking oranges, lemons are being given to schools destroying large numbers of the insects.

The Kaplan Bakery in Rishon Le-Zion will not receive its flour ration for a month following an inspection of the bakery it was revealed that it was not properly cleaned.

EMERGENCY PHARMACIES
JERUSALEM: 12 Hametzot Street, Rehovot, Bukharim Quarter, 4738.
TEL AVIV: "Doctor's Call," 332-2245; 2 Nachlaot, Biniamin corner, 4738.
Hospitals: Geula, 10 Ahad Ha'Am, Melchett, 50 Sheinkin, 3502. Yusef-Ranick, 7 Ahad Ha'Am, 3273. Ben Yehuda, 112 Ben Yehuda.
JERUSALEM: 12 Hametzot Street, Ramat Gan: Ramat Gan.
HAIFA: 27 Pevzner, 4073.

McDonald Addresses Independence Party
TEL AVIV, Tuesday. — No one would have thought two years ago that other countries would show so much interest in Israel's position on the Korean war, said Mr. James G. McDonald, U.S. Ambassador, here last night.

He was speaking at the U.S. Independence Day function called at the Pilz Cafe under the auspices of the Israel-America Friendship League.

Comparing the situation of America after her war of independence with the situation of Israel now, he said, "In both cases the pessimists have been proved wrong in regard to their doubts of the continued existence of our state."

Officials of the League opened the meeting and officials of the Embassy, a group of U.N. Observers and officials of the Ministry for Foreign Affairs and other Governments attended the party.

T.A. Postmen Strike
TEL AVIV, Tuesday. — Mail was not delivered in Tel Aviv this morning, when postmen staged a strike because they objected to being placed in grades Bet to Daled, as had been decided by the Government Employees' Union. They demand that they be graded from Gimel to Hah and they also want additional pay for the second mail delivery on Friday.

The strike ended at 11 o'clock in the morning, when a member of the Union agreed to call a meeting to hear the postmen's demands.

Food News

SOUTHERN DISTRICT:
Local camps: 150 grams visitors, 30 tourists, 150 grams. Tiberias and vicinity, tomorrow: Shin-Gimel 4; Rehovot and Friday, Shin-Gimel 4; Thursday and Friday, Shin-Gimel 4; Friday, Shin-Gimel 4; Natanya, 200 grams. Tel Aviv, Shin-Gimel 4; Friday, Shin-Gimel 4; Natanya, 200 grams. Meat: 120 grams. Kaf 25; Kaf 26; visitors 11 or 12. Onions: 200 grams. Shin-Bet 7; visitors, 12; tourists, 2; additional 200 grams. Wednesdays in Tel Aviv, 1; visitors, Tiv-Vav; tourists, 22; additional card; distribution in Ramat Gan and Givatayim. Friday, 250 grams. Shin-David 2; visitors, 200 grams. Nun, old card or 35, new card; tourists, 6; distribution in same 1 ends July 12.

JERUSALEM: All persons may receive frozen or canned meat. If fresh meat is unavailable at the special stations.

Water News
Water will be distributed today in the following areas of Jerusalem: Upper Gilo, Ben Motzker, Kiryat Shmuel, Montefiore, Ben Zion Quarter, Sheikh Jarrah, Mohava Germani, Nethanya Rd, North Talpiot, Deir Abu Tur, Tel Aviv, Tel Aviv, Al-Mazar, Rehovot, Mea Shearim, Sderot, Mahanayim, Shmuel Hanasi.

Personal Notice

SHULAMITH and Shmuel TOLIDANO
(Nee Patt)

are happy to announce the birth of a Son

The Brit Milah
will take place on Thursday, July 6, 1950, at 10 a.m., at the home of Mrs. Haya Patt, 6, Savid St. (Hamalaot), Jerusalem. Friends and relatives are cordially invited. Please accept this as personal invitation.

Knesset Visit To U.K. Approved

Sunset Homage On Mt. Herzl

Yacobovitz Ordered To Defend Himself

The lighting of signal fires on Mount Herzl opened the Herzl Day ceremonies yesterday in Jerusalem. The buildings of the Jewish Agency, the Knesset and Government offices were illuminated and decorated for the occasion.

The Knesset adjourned its session to allow its members to participate in the ceremonies on Mount Herzl. A long convoy left the Jewish Agency courtyard at 7.30 in the evening, carrying the Prime Minister, the Knesset Speaker, who also represented the President, all members of the Cabinet, Chief Rabbi Uziel, the Chairman and members of the Jewish Agency Executive, members of the Zionist General Council, veterans of the Zionist Movement and the surviving participants of the early Zionist Congresses.

On Mount Herzl, the National colours fluttered on standards which formed a semi-circle around the grave and a military Guard of Honour stood at attention. As the sun sank, the top of the Mount was illuminated by two searchlights and by torches borne by groups of young people.

Mr. Meir Grabowsky (Mapam) called Mr. Yalin-Mor a "Jewit" and said that for centuries and decades, the British people had been the first to help the Jewish people in times of distress. What Mr. Yalin-Mor said were true and the British were worse than Nazi killers, then Israel should not have established diplomatic relations or have any dealings with Britain.

Another motion for a debate was made by Mr. Eliezer Prai (Mapam), who charged that the Minister of Interior was undermining democracy in local administration. He complained that the Ministry hindered the annexation of "Hamizraim" Quarter to the area of Rishon le Zion; that the electoral committee in Karkur was "stacked" so that Hidratul parties should have a majority; and that elections to other local authorities had been delayed.

Mr. Moshe Shapiro defended his action in each case, and the House voted to refer the matter to the Interior Committee, which was in any case dealing with the.

U.S. INDEPENDENCE DAY

A meeting of the Israel-American Friendship League was held at the Bet Ha-Halutza in Jerusalem at 8 o'clock this evening, and not tomorrow evening as announced in yesterday's paper.

The speakers will be Mayor Daniel Auster and Mr. Eliezer Liebenstein, Knesset member. The meeting will mark the American Independence Day.

U.K. Trade With East Increases

TEL AVIV, Tuesday. — The trial of David Yacobovitz, charged with the Gan Meir murder, was adjourned for two days today after another session which did not take the case any further.

This morning, Mr. S. Shimron, the State Attorney, asked the Court to allow the accused one last chance to choose a defence counsel and also to examine further whether Mr. I. Protsman, Yacobovitz' attorney who fell ill six weeks ago, can return to the case soon.

At the last hearing Yacobovitz refused to accept any other attorney. The Court ruled at that time that, as the accused had refused other counsel and the trial had been unduly delayed, proceedings should continue with the accused defending himself.

Prosecution Criticized

The father of the attacked girl, who is himself an advocate, objected today to any further delay after sharply criticizing the prosecution and the police in their conduct of the case. Mr. A. Polonsky, Chairman of the Tel Aviv Lawyers' Federation, appeared and asked on behalf of his Federation that the Court allow Mr. Ben-Jaminy more time to appear since the latter was likely to be able to conclude the case in three weeks time at the latest.

It is hoped that Russia will now supply about 15 per cent of this country's total requirements of softwood. Even if this is a more important proportion than last year, it must be remembered that total consumption in the United Kingdom today is only about half what it was before the war.

In the recent announcement that Russia is to supply a larger quantity of softwood this year indicates a desire on both sides to restore something of the pre-war pattern of this trade.

The spokesman denied that Dr. Adenauer had specifically demanded a security guarantee for Western Germany from the Western occupation powers and would not say whether the attitude of the British Government to this question had undergone any change in recent weeks.

When last questioned, British officials had stated that the security of Western Germany was already sufficiently guaranteed by the general provisions of the N.T.O. convention.

The spokesman said that Dr. Adenauer's letter would come before a meeting of the Allied High Commission.

M.D.A. Station At Lydda

LYDDA AIRPORT, Tuesday. — A first aid station of the Magen David Adom was opened here today by Dr. Y. Kot, Chairman of the M.D.A. Society.

CAIRO, Tuesday (Reuter).

MAJOR-General Abdul Mahmud Pasha, chief of Egypt's Coast Guard Administration, alleged yesterday that British troops in the Suez Canal Zone are using their immunity from local customs checks to help smuggle hashish and opium into Egypt.

In an interview published in the pro-government newspaper, "Al Misri," he was quoted as saying: "The presence of British troops in the canal zone is an important gap in the anti-narcotics network established by the Egyptian authorities."

He said the newspaper reported that it appeared smugglers got British soldiers to carry their drugs "since soldiers in uniform and in military cars cannot be inspected by the Egyptian authorities."

The General said Egyptian soldiers in the Gaza area were also being used for the trade.

He added that about £2,500 worth of opium and hashish were seized by the Coast Guard during 1949. It is estimated here that Egyptians of all classes spend about £100m. annually on drugs.

The Government of Israel does not under this resolution become a party to the grave conflict which divides the greater part of the world, and covers the international horizon with clouds threatening disaster. The Government of Israel by this Resolution is discharging its obligation under the Charter and giving effect to its dedication to the cause of peace. Israel is aligned with those nations which see in the U.N. a firm line of defence against a world catastrophe, the like of which has not been seen. The security and development requirements of the State of Israel, the fulfillment of its historic mission of ingathering the exiles, concern for the fate of the surviving remnant of the Jewish people in its dispersion, all go to emphasize the responsibility of the Israeli Government, fortifying its spirit and strengthening its determination to persevere in the course which it has once traced for itself: the course of independent policy, free of bloc entanglement; the striving for an agreed settlement of the conflicts dividing the world; the preservation of the authority of the U.N. for the maintenance of world peace, nor can it serve as a pretext for the removal of the responsibilities towards the U.N. nor can it be turned into a weapon which instead of securing peace, might well affect the security of Israel itself.

The General said the principles of non-identification cannot be perverted into repudiation of world peace, nor can it become a pretense for the removal of the responsibilities towards the U.N. nor can it be turned into a weapon which instead of securing peace, might well affect the security of Israel itself.

The General said Egyptian soldiers in the Gaza area were also being used for the trade.

He added that about £2,500 worth of opium and hashish were seized by the Coast Guard during 1949. It is estimated here that Egyptians of all classes spend about £100m. annually on drugs.

The weekly magazine, "La Isha," several months ago, inaugurated a beauty contest for the selection of the Beauty Queen of Israel. A party will be held on July 21 when the judges, made up of prominent men and women, will announce their decision. The Beauty Queen selected will receive a month's trip to France. The International Committee for the election of the Beauty Queen of Israel and has also proposed to include her in the World's Beauty Queen contest.

France and Marseilles will be present at the party and they will be accompanied by the President of the European Beauty Queens Committee. Further arrangements may be found in "La Isha."

(Advt.)

LEARN THE ROAD SIGNS

Controller of Road Transport

Driver — Slow down

Take care

Traffic without mishaps

LEARN THE ROAD SIGNS

Space by courtesy of The Prudential Assurance Co. Ltd., Tel Aviv.

10 Most Unpopular World Classics

NEW YORK, Tuesday (AP). — The Columbia University Press has completed a poll on the ten most boring classics in the world.

The "winner" was John Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress."

The results were printed after polling hundreds of editors, writers, book-sellers, librarians, literary critics and amateurs.

The other nine in order of popularity are Melville's "Moby Dick," Milton's "Paradise Lost," Spenser's "Faerie Queene," Boswell's "Life of Samuel Johnson," Richardson's "Pamela," Eliot's "Salem Mariner," Scott's "Ivanhoe," Cervante's "Don Quixote," and Goethe's "Faust."

12,000 Rumanians Receive Passports

BUDAPEST, Tuesday (UPI). —

"All rumours alleging that there is an agreement between Israel and Hungary about the wholesale emigration of Hungarian Jews are entirely unfounded," Mr. Josef Walter, Press Attaché of the Israeli Legation in Budapest, stated here.

Rumours of an agreement, circulated among Hungarians, were based on the fact that Rumania recently followed the example of Bulgaria, Poland and Czechoslovakia in announcing its willingness to let the Jews go.

Jews here hoped for a similar statement.

"I personally hope for an agreement with Hungary also," Mr. Walter stated. Though permission was given by the Rumanian Government only a few weeks ago, 12,000 Jews have already obtained their passports, which is "remarkably quick," Mr. Walter commented.

"There has been no official Zionist movement in this country since a year ago, when all Zionist organizations dissolved voluntarily," the Press Attaché stated.

He said, however, that in accordance with a former agreement with the Hungarian Government about 3,000 Jews can leave this country but only those people whose next of kin left Hungary for Israel with a valid passport. He said he hoped that all 3,000 will have gone before the end of this year.

In diplomatic quarters here it was thought that Dr. Adenauer's move had been dictated by the experience of Korea.

The spokesman said that Dr. Adenauer's letter would come before a meeting of the Allied High Commission.

Workers' Group To Study in U.K.

TEL AVIV, Tuesday. — A group of 15 Israeli workers is leaving for Britain on Sunday on a three-month study of new methods of production in metallurgy, textile and food processing. The delegation is similar to that which visited the U.S. recently.

Speaking at a farewell reception in honour of the delegation here tonight, Mr. Ivor Thomas, the British Labour Attaché, said a "delegation of plain people" is an important step towards mutual understanding between nations.

"We reaffirm," the resolution said, "the special status of the World Zionist organization and urge such reaffirmation upon all Zionists and upon the Government of Israel. The World Zionist organization should continue to be possessed of special functions in conducting its activities in the field of immigration, halutzim, economic investments, public relations and education in the diaspora."

"Similarly, local territorial units of the World Zionist organization should be accorded exclusive status in their communities with respect to activities conducted on behalf of Israel and instruction."

The broadcasts will begin in a few weeks' time, when the wavelength of the new station has been established.

MISSING

from my home at 2 Keller St., Mt. Carmel.

Light Brown Leather Bag, 40 X 60 cm.

American type, containing documents, of value only to me. Finder please return to my address or phone 7180, Haifa. REWARD.

Women's Service

TEL AVIV, Tuesday. — The importance of women's service in the Army was stressed by Aloof-Mishne Shoshana Werner, O.C. of the Women's Corps, at a press tour today.

Many girls are sent to Nahal (Pioneer Youth Battalions), but a large number are trained for clerical work and for service in Signals and other jobs, where they release men for tougher assignments.

He said the newspaper reported that it appeared smugglers got British soldiers to carry their drugs "since soldiers in uniform and in military cars cannot be inspected

THE JERUSALEM POST

Founded as The Palestine Post in 1922. Published daily except Saturday, in Jerusalem by The Palestine Post Ltd., registered at the U.P.C. Founder and Editor — Gershon Agnon (on Leave). Managing Editor: Ted R. Luria. Editorial Office & Management: 8 Rehov HaHavatot, Jerusalem, P.O.B. 61. Tel. 4221 (4 lines). Tel. 222-4222. 222-4223. Neharayim, P.O.B. 1125. Tel. 4221 (2 lines). Haifa: 1 Khatay St. P.O.B. 66. Tel. 4594-5 lines). Wednesday, July 5, 1950 Number 2750. Haifa 26, 1950.

EGYPT'S refusal to comply with the Security Council's resolution on Korea and Israel's support of the Council

EGYPT, THE characteristic of each REED Israel is interested in peace and will further efforts to maintain it whenever it is threatened or to restore it whenever it is broken. As clearly stated by the Foreign Minister in the Knesset yesterday, Israel seeks peace at home, on its own borders, and upholds peace further afield, near or far for both its sake and the sake of the world. Egypt, on the other hand, not long ago opened unprovoked war against a neighbour, in breach of its solemn undertaking under the U.N. Charter, and since then, although it entered into an armistice agreement, persistently blocks the way to a stable peace. And now it stands aside from the Security Council's appeal for support of peace in Korea.

In defence of its attitude, Egypt proffers a strange explanation. Its representative on the Security Council said, "There have been cases of aggression on the peoples' violation of the sovereignty of the land of member nations. Such aggressions were submitted to the United Nations, which took no action as it does now with Korea." The other delegates must have smiled ironically at this spectacle of the devil turned saint. It is true that at the time of the invasion of this country by Egypt and its associates of the Arab League, Israel was not yet a member of the U.N. The breach of the Charter, which Egypt had signed, was flagrant nonetheless.

This is not the first time that Egypt has proved itself unreliable. Its likeness to a broken reed "whereon if a man lean it will go into his hand and pierce it" has been symbolic ever since the warning was given by the prophet Isaiah. Perhaps even at this late hour the lesson will not be lost on Britain, which has been supplying arms and planes to Egypt.

"WHEN Hercules and Lichas play at dice," observed Shakespeare, Bacon, Derby, or whoever it was that wrote "The Merchant of Venice" and some other plays and poems, "the greatest may turn by fortune from the weaker hand." Quite right: the bard is able to explain succinctly, for the express benefit of experimental schoolboys and disillusioned old men, why gambling is a dangerous practice for the decent fellow. The latter may be beaten by a plump, pasty-faced picaroon who, if he hazards a throw with one such. With none such, in fact, ought anybody with regard for the Bible or the old philosophers to play. Even Abu Hassan the Wag, the Count Bobby, Marlow or what-have-you of the court of Haroun-al-Haschid, learned not to carouse with the same gameman twice. But there is a seductive, siren voice which declares in a wheedling treble that if a man cannot stake high on a game of chance, then he is no real man at all, but something masquerading in trousers in order to get the benefits of a man-made and man-administered society. This is that old friend of ours, who insists that if we are in the company of people who swear, drink or gamble, then good manners demand that we do likewise. Surely those in Tel Aviv, who, by keeping the gambling halls open, distract the police from other work, could show a public spirit by suppressing the evil of their private vice?

The Merchant of Venice and some other plays and poems, "the greatest may turn by fortune from the weaker hand." Quite right: the bard is able to explain succinctly, for the express benefit of experimental schoolboys and disillusioned old men, why gambling is a dangerous practice for the decent fellow. The latter may be beaten by a plump, pasty-faced picaroon who, if he hazards a throw with one such. With none such, in fact, ought anybody with regard for the Bible or the old philosophers to play. Even Abu Hassan the Wag, the Count Bobby, Marlow or what-have-you of the court of Haroun-al-Haschid, learned not to carouse with the same gameman twice. But there is a seductive, siren voice which declares in a wheedling treble that if a man cannot stake high on a game of chance, then he is no real man at all, but something masquerading in trousers in order to get the benefits of a man-made and man-administered society. This is that old friend of ours, who insists that if we are in the company of people who swear, drink or gamble, then good manners demand that we do likewise. Surely those in Tel Aviv, who, by keeping the gambling halls open, distract the police from other work, could show a public spirit by suppressing the evil of their private vice?

After wars and revolutions, the people demand bread and circuses. If the first request of the old Roman slogan has not been fully realized, the second came true in our musical life to an extent almost approaching the season in New York. This year Maestro succeeded prodigies and in his turn was followed by genius who gave place to "the world's greatest." Does such a situation imply a healthy musical life? There was rather a depressing feeling of gorging on caviar, oysters and champagne without the prerequisite support. Is a nation of immigrants from the five continents really prepared for an uninterrupted shower of meteors? From an educational point of view, the star-system is the ruin of cultural development. What this country needs is continuity, the creation of an artistic ensemble instead of hysterical sterilization with a parvenu audience as the arbiter of who of half-a-dozen of the world's greatest violinists is the champion. And what of those nauseating provincial defamatory campaigns, sniffing out in a yellow-press manner, the private lives of our guests, and which cease immediately on their success?

What is to happen in the meantime to our own artists, struggling for recognition for decades and, with toil and sweat, laying the foundations of Israeli music? Are they to be expected to attract attention by performing simultaneously on the violin and piano from a flying trapeze? It may not be irrelevant

Readers' Letters

HADAR YOREF SHIKUN
The Editor, The Jerusalem Post

Sir.—We are glad to inform you that since the appearance of your report on June 20 on the "Hadar Yosef" immigrants Shikun, the Electric Company has started work on the electric network for the quarter.

There are also no difficulties with the water supply, either to the inhabitants and their gardens, or for the new building project we have begun at the same place—100 flats for Mahal men and another 40 dwellings for new immigrants. Yours, etc.

S. EPSTEIN,
Manager, Amidar,
Tel Aviv, June 26.

PLEASE!

The Editor, The Jerusalem Post
Sir.—I have lived in this country for three years and have got used to its hardships, but one thing I cannot get accustomed to is the appalling lack of manners.

Something must be done about the ugly arrogance of the young towards the old. I am sure that a "Politeness Campaign" is easier to introduce than a "Silence Campaign," because it is not difficult to be nice to people.

Yours, etc., M. PAULNY
May 26.

Points from Letters

PHONE — Your correspondent 36-TV/5029 has my sympathy as I also suffer from angina pectoris and suffer daily torture through lack of a telephone. Although I suffered from it at the time I applied for a telephone, I am still, after five years, on the waiting list

36-TV/5082, Tel Aviv.
ANTHEM — I have been horrified by the lack of decorum when our National Anthem is played. In other countries, even less patriotic than ours, everyone is educated to the fact that their National Anthem is something to be proud of. When it is played everyone stands still and military personnel stand to attention and are reprimanded if they do otherwise. Anto Aitman, Tel Aviv.

The Reder show contains a

NEW HAIFA CROSSING

A footbridge over Rehov HaHatzaf, Hatya, from the Ora Cinema to the new Histadrut building, is now under construction. Photo by Jonas

TEL AVIV ART NOTES

Loutchansky and Reder

WITH a magnificent exhibition of Far Eastern Art, sculptures by Jacques Loutchansky and woodcuts by Bernard Reder, the Tel Aviv Museum is especially well worth visiting. The first named collection, perhaps the finest ever assembled in this country, will remain open for some time and so will be reviewed later.

The Loutchansky works have already been shown in Jerusalem and reviewed in these columns. The exhibition is comprehensive with 16 works in bronze, four in wood and a number in stone, terracotta and plaster and, to give the spectator an idea of how the artist sets about his modelling, two small clay works are included.

Loutchansky is a sculptor in the classic tradition, most competent and able to create works of great dignity and power. Whatever his subject he treats it with respect and endows everything he touches with a certain nobility. The tone of his sculpture is quiet but it all has a vitality. Even such small works as the bronze "Deer" or the tenderly modelled "Head of a Boy" have a monumental character. This is an impressive exhibition by an important sculptor.

The Reder show contains a large number of coloured woodcuts which have arrived in Israel since the Jerusalem exhibition. This is a very interesting collection of works. Reder is not only a master of his craft, he has a vivid imagination allied with humour. Whether he is illustrating the legends of Noah, Ebelais, "Gargantua and Pantagruel" or depicting an imaginary forest, there is the same aura of the strange and fantastic.

Among the many excellent black-and-whites there is a superb study of a woman's head "Woman with High Collar" which, in its telling simplicity, expressiveness and rhythmic balance of masses is a veritable masterpiece.

The coloured woodcuts are among the best this reviewer has seen and it is interesting to compare them with the Japanese prints being shown in the ground floor galleries. Like his great predecessors, Reder does not seek naturalistic effects, but the creation of a vital and rhythmic design in which colour and line form an organic whole. At the same time he obtains unusual effects of gradation of tones which have an attractive vibrancy and spontaneity. Outstanding examples are "Centaur and Clown" lent by the New York Museum of Modern Art and the "Cock Fight."

S.W.

MUSICAL DIARY

THE final concert of the Israel Festival of Music held in the Kirya Garden was a great financial success.

Several hundred people had to be satisfied with standing room in the crowded garden and many more, shut out of the grounds, listened on car radios.

It was a colourful evening, devoted mainly to oriental music. The participating artists were the singers, Bracha Zara, Ina Goldstein and Avraham Wilkomirsky, the Ramat Yohanan and Workers' Chorus, dancers of the Hapoel Circle of Tel Aviv, Sarah Levy with her Oriental Group, N. Melamed's Bukharian Group, the Israel Wind Ensemble and the New Tel Aviv String Quartet, Shmuel Fersko and Moshe Lustig accompanied on the piano.

The Reder show contains a to quote two London critics in the recent Festival of Israel Music held in the Royal Albert Hall.

The "Manchester Guardian" critic commented:

From time to time we read accounts of a flourishing musical life in Israel under the lead of the Israel Philharmonic and the Composers' Association and of the new music that is springing up in the country's academies and concert halls. For this country is a young one and a new generation were represented, it being supposed that the younger ones were not yet fit for European audiences. May they qualify for the honour of the elders in the creative art in musical Israel in greatly in need of a genuine talent.

The "Daily Telegraph" music critic had this to say:

No remarkable talent was revealed but a prod was afforded of life in Israel under the lead of the Israel Philharmonic and the Composers' Association and if such a work as Kaminski's "Comedy Overture" or Ben Haim's Piano Concerto left us with no other curiosity than its author, the craftsmanship will come in useful in the training of the next generation of Israeli composers.

Both these critics had special praise for the pianist Frank Pelleg — "a sparkling executant" — and for Martin Lawrence's singing of Joseph Grunthal's "Exodus."

FRANGO

The "Daily Telegraph" music critic had this to say:

No remarkable talent was revealed but a prod was afforded of life in Israel under the lead of the Israel Philharmonic and the Composers' Association and if such a work as Kaminski's "Comedy Overture" or Ben Haim's Piano Concerto left us with no other curiosity than its author, the craftsmanship will come in useful in the training of the next generation of Israeli composers.

Both these critics had special praise for the pianist Frank Pelleg — "a sparkling executant" — and for Martin Lawrence's singing of Joseph Grunthal's "Exodus."

FRANGO

The "Daily Telegraph" music critic had this to say:

No remarkable talent was revealed but a prod was afforded of life in Israel under the lead of the Israel Philharmonic and the Composers' Association and if such a work as Kaminski's "Comedy Overture" or Ben Haim's Piano Concerto left us with no other curiosity than its author, the craftsmanship will come in useful in the training of the next generation of Israeli composers.

Both these critics had special praise for the pianist Frank Pelleg — "a sparkling executant" — and for Martin Lawrence's singing of Joseph Grunthal's "Exodus."

FRANGO

The "Daily Telegraph" music critic had this to say:

No remarkable talent was revealed but a prod was afforded of life in Israel under the lead of the Israel Philharmonic and the Composers' Association and if such a work as Kaminski's "Comedy Overture" or Ben Haim's Piano Concerto left us with no other curiosity than its author, the craftsmanship will come in useful in the training of the next generation of Israeli composers.

Both these critics had special praise for the pianist Frank Pelleg — "a sparkling executant" — and for Martin Lawrence's singing of Joseph Grunthal's "Exodus."

FRANGO

The "Daily Telegraph" music critic had this to say:

No remarkable talent was revealed but a prod was afforded of life in Israel under the lead of the Israel Philharmonic and the Composers' Association and if such a work as Kaminski's "Comedy Overture" or Ben Haim's Piano Concerto left us with no other curiosity than its author, the craftsmanship will come in useful in the training of the next generation of Israeli composers.

Both these critics had special praise for the pianist Frank Pelleg — "a sparkling executant" — and for Martin Lawrence's singing of Joseph Grunthal's "Exodus."

FRANGO

The "Daily Telegraph" music critic had this to say:

No remarkable talent was revealed but a prod was afforded of life in Israel under the lead of the Israel Philharmonic and the Composers' Association and if such a work as Kaminski's "Comedy Overture" or Ben Haim's Piano Concerto left us with no other curiosity than its author, the craftsmanship will come in useful in the training of the next generation of Israeli composers.

Both these critics had special praise for the pianist Frank Pelleg — "a sparkling executant" — and for Martin Lawrence's singing of Joseph Grunthal's "Exodus."

FRANGO

The "Daily Telegraph" music critic had this to say:

No remarkable talent was revealed but a prod was afforded of life in Israel under the lead of the Israel Philharmonic and the Composers' Association and if such a work as Kaminski's "Comedy Overture" or Ben Haim's Piano Concerto left us with no other curiosity than its author, the craftsmanship will come in useful in the training of the next generation of Israeli composers.

Both these critics had special praise for the pianist Frank Pelleg — "a sparkling executant" — and for Martin Lawrence's singing of Joseph Grunthal's "Exodus."

FRANGO

The "Daily Telegraph" music critic had this to say:

No remarkable talent was revealed but a prod was afforded of life in Israel under the lead of the Israel Philharmonic and the Composers' Association and if such a work as Kaminski's "Comedy Overture" or Ben Haim's Piano Concerto left us with no other curiosity than its author, the craftsmanship will come in useful in the training of the next generation of Israeli composers.

Both these critics had special praise for the pianist Frank Pelleg — "a sparkling executant" — and for Martin Lawrence's singing of Joseph Grunthal's "Exodus."

FRANGO

The "Daily Telegraph" music critic had this to say:

No remarkable talent was revealed but a prod was afforded of life in Israel under the lead of the Israel Philharmonic and the Composers' Association and if such a work as Kaminski's "Comedy Overture" or Ben Haim's Piano Concerto left us with no other curiosity than its author, the craftsmanship will come in useful in the training of the next generation of Israeli composers.

Both these critics had special praise for the pianist Frank Pelleg — "a sparkling executant" — and for Martin Lawrence's singing of Joseph Grunthal's "Exodus."

FRANGO

The "Daily Telegraph" music critic had this to say:

No remarkable talent was revealed but a prod was afforded of life in Israel under the lead of the Israel Philharmonic and the Composers' Association and if such a work as Kaminski's "Comedy Overture" or Ben Haim's Piano Concerto left us with no other curiosity than its author, the craftsmanship will come in useful in the training of the next generation of Israeli composers.

Both these critics had special praise for the pianist Frank Pelleg — "a sparkling executant" — and for Martin Lawrence's singing of Joseph Grunthal's "Exodus."

FRANGO

The "Daily Telegraph" music critic had this to say:

No remarkable talent was revealed but a prod was afforded of life in Israel under the lead of the Israel Philharmonic and the Composers' Association and if such a work as Kaminski's "Comedy Overture" or Ben Haim's Piano Concerto left us with no other curiosity than its author, the craftsmanship will come in useful in the training of the next generation of Israeli composers.

Both these critics had special praise for the pianist Frank Pelleg — "a sparkling executant" — and for Martin Lawrence's singing of Joseph Grunthal's "Exodus."

FRANGO

The "Daily Telegraph" music critic had this to say:

No remarkable talent was revealed but a prod was afforded of life in Israel under the lead of the Israel Philharmonic and the Composers' Association and if such a work as Kaminski's "Comedy Overture" or Ben Haim's Piano Concerto left us with no other curiosity than its author, the craftsmanship will come in useful in the training of the next generation of Israeli composers.

Both these critics had special praise for the pianist Frank Pelleg — "a sparkling executant" — and for Martin Lawrence's singing of Joseph Grunthal's "Exodus."

FRANGO

The "Daily Telegraph" music critic had this to say:

No remarkable talent was revealed but a prod was afforded of life in Israel under the lead of the Israel Philharmonic and the Composers' Association and if such a work as Kaminski's "Comedy Overture" or Ben Haim's Piano Concerto left us with no other curiosity than its author, the craftsmanship will come in useful in the training of the next generation of Israeli composers.

Both these critics had special praise for the pianist Frank Pelleg — "a sparkling executant" — and for Martin Lawrence's singing of Joseph Grunthal's "Exodus."

FRANGO

The "Daily Telegraph" music critic had this to say:

No remarkable talent was revealed but a prod was afforded of life in Israel under the lead of the Israel Philharmonic and the Composers' Association and if such a work as Kaminski's "Com